When was the last time a niggly voice in your head stopped you from doing something? Did it hold you back for a while or stop you entirely? It doesn't matter if that voice is whispering doubts about a sales negotiation, a marketing opportunity, a promotion, or a career switch—at its core, it comes from the same place, and it always causes harm. Unless you know how to manage it and overcome it.

Charlie Whyman is a business leader, speaker, and Managing Director who has built a diverse career across male-dominated industries—from aviation and mining to geospatial and shipping. She helps individuals and teams overcome self-doubt, take bold action, and ReThink, ReFrame, and ReTrain their mindset to navigate uncertainty with confidence.

Don Hake my word for it

"Charlie's personal story is compelling and s"he connects her own experiences seamlessly into tangible advice and takeaways for other audience. We left with concrete tips and general inspiration about being more courageous"

'I've done an MBA and can honestly say that Charlie's talk was more actionable than any of my marketing lectures"

"Superb speaker with great content, charisma in spades and a very professional delivery style. She hooked you and reeled us in with humour, social proof, and a caring "slap" or two. Well worth booking before she gets too expensive!"

"Charlie spoke at our Midlands Life Sciences Special Interest Group and is not your average speaker, her virtual presentation included elements that the group could interact with as well as lots of actionable takeaways they can implement right away.
